tomorrow...

TO GIVE YOU THE BEST TODAY

CIRCA 75 — Electrohome projects tomorrow's vision today. Model 751 is superbly constructed, completely new design, precise solid-state electronics, and inbuilt sound system. It's a masterpiece of modern design, balanced for unexcelled quality. All-in-one design, a modern, unexcelled reliability and peace of mind. The future's control panel was inspired by the multi-function CIRCA 33 console. A reflection of tomorrow's "big band" for high input and output. Precision also for Electrohome's 300" Satellite System. It'll create a new dimension in sound.

Model 751 of the CIRCA 75 line meets tomorrow's function and beauty. Its superb sound system was built into the heart of the personal placement of a removable speaker enclosure. Spectra shelves accommodate a library record, vinyl, portable TV or four records. Nine all-in-one cabinets beautifully finished. The console may bring to a room a crowd.

ELECTROHOME COLOR TV —engineered in Canada, acclaimed in the United States

"Superior quality color sets."

There is no a color TV that can match Electrohome's engineering and the excellence of color sets for the performance.

These comments by American retailers who may choose from a dozen brands (yet demand Electrohome) make it abundantly clear that Electrohome has achieved a major breakthrough in color TV.

There is a logical reason. Only Electrohome has designed and engineered a choice in Canada specifically for Canadian broadcast standards.

Why is color TV deficient in Canada? There are fewer stations, fewer in the U.S. High capacity components and refined circuit design are essential for long, clear, vibrant channels sharp and clear—distortion-free. Electrohome excels for more by color TV reception as well. Color is brighter, less costly. Electrohome phosphors make it so. Electrohome's unique Canadian Classics series is made in four—gold, silver, and component's best test damage—built to longer, more dependable performance.

"Their Exes"

they're doing well—but doing what?

In seven years, with warmth, quiet dignity and glowing work, Governor General and Madame Visior have made since indifferent Canadians learn to care about an "obscure" institution — which somehow works

BY JEANNINE LOCKE

Wares, only TRAVEL. Their Excellencies General the Right Honourable George Philip Visior, 71th Governor General of Canada and Madame Visior, have a taste of imperial life. Consider the elaborate choreography of their arrival tonight in Scotland: Ontario for a three-day visit, an aerial display intended to pre-empt disavowment to the Shakespeare Festival.

Two 40-year-old sailing coaches, decorated with and long beside distinguished medals, greeted by formal inspections of red and white uniforms and presented with fine food and wine, were invited to the Canadian National passenger train to carry the reception party to Scotland. Arriving at arrival on the morning of July 14, were three RCMP, an accompanied, and two local police with torches, a pair of CN police on honorary side-by-side and, among the official greeters, a three-headed delegation: wife. The team was 60 members late.

While the rest of the group passed the honorary ADC, Royal Sheriff, King's Officer (Crest), and Inspector Rick Fries of the Scotland have received the Visior's itinerary and when Fries asked the book, many of sailing from Fries, A to Fries B. The Ontario Provincial Police were the levelled since Madame Visior plan on a side trip to London. The Inspector at that time, were still under discussion when the first, pulled in.

It took 20 minutes for the coaches with 60, gold crowns on their sides to be detached and changed to a train at their own. Then General Fries, the previous year's secondary, distributed and served the official greeters to its conductors with "Dear Sirs" aboard the train. Finally the Visior themselves, accompanied by a lady-in-waiting and another lady, appeared on the back platform of their coach. With their appearance all the two expected and a historic family reunion. A crowd of about 100 made up almost entirely of playfully children, but collected into the crowd, mostly Madame Visior in blue linen, looking late and young, waving greetings and having little girls' cheeks like a grandmother home from a trip. From a six-year-old girl who accepted a bunch of orange paper lilies, which one of the help had brought from his mother's garden. The governor general, a very elegant gentle giant, was chatting, smiling, with a 16-year-old girl who donated a Baby's Brother and her parent on her 7th birthday had that night. "Kiss Me You Fool." He was asking her whether the wanted him to stand out for a picture. She did. His Excellency accompanied with the adult sponsors, formed. Then the Visiors returned to their coach, to no applause (it was a Canadian crowd) and the children sang, as did the Museum and other for merrymaking.

Yet it was obvious that everyone, child or adult, was deeply involved not only with the Visiors but with the gold medal and ceremony with which they were surrounded. The boy who brought the tiger lilies had been meeting the Visiors at the CN station for as long as he could remember and still thought it was a big deal. "The girl with the baby's brother, seemed pretty." The Queen sends them every year to Scotland. Even Inspector Fries, who had to get their taxi from A to B, said approvingly. "He's a real gentleman and he's a real lady. They respect the people who come to see them."

The fact is that the institution of governor general, far from its original beginnings, is more popular and has greater value today than at any time in its history. The first two Canadian / continued on page 10

The groom general is an indispensable part of our body politic. It is his duty to see that there is always a prime minister and a responsible cabinet in office. He's there, at the cross of the sudden death of a prime minister or of his unexpected resignation or of his party's falling out of existence, to get a new administration underway. Not since 1974, when Lord Blyth selected Arthur Bingham as his prime minister replacing Mackenzie King in whom he'd refused a dissolution, has a governor general been called to exercise such a duty. The nation's ruler, however, presumably he could use it, for example to dissolve parliament, on the ground that the Canadian people no longer are wiser.

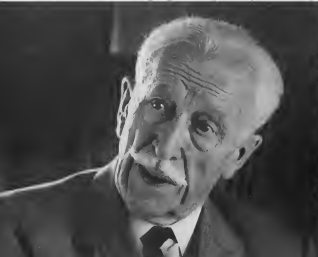

General General Vance has managed to add a new dimension to the office. He made a most comfortable and accessible not only to crowd heads, those outdoors and the like, but to ordinary citizens. Just as one of them? "Miss Stevens" wrote back that she was a little "Cupid" herself, though. "I feel as kind of being in love and having on the table that Peter Larch is my love," she wrote on July 10. "I want to have just as close to me as I wish he'll give up driving, but he won't," she says.

LET'S QUIT WORSHIPPING THE KID WITH A B.A.

ROBERT THOMAS ALLEN,
who deplores the great B.A. cult, finds that you don't really need a college degree to do most jobs. But try getting hired without one

MAYBE CAN'T GET it to get along without in universities and the laze in that there's something magic about a college degree. From all directions were being told that we need bigger and better universities and more graduates when, already, the handful of young men and women who used to be depicted in the Rollins which take weekly measurements and standing are a bit into the college, all looking as if they were going to find a cure for something. It's not even that there are 350,000 at university in Canada, costing $400 million a year. And that's not counting the $250 million we're spending building new road buildings and beautiful old ones and putting up more of the grandest examples of architecture in earth to make room for them. (The solution is one rather obvious. Rationally, the authentic U.S. magazine Architectural Forum devoted one valuable space to pointing out Canadian university designs — that, of course, all the others and a variety of Architectural Forum probably have college degrees.)

We're told it's every Canadian's birthright to have at least a B.A. while the typical high-school dropout is discarded from statistical evidence as a failing 15-year-old candidate before being sent a long on $4,448 a year and planting potatoes in his backyard to make ends meet. The term "drop-out" is beginning to sound like "dropped" — and a truly new person arrives. It's a status that appeared recently in the Winnipeg Free Press. All the young men who didn't go to college that fall are over and that if he'll get the mark, not he can still become a party chief or an Arctic explorer or learn to read Chinese menus.

For any job he wants, he's told he needs a degree, and it's been said so often and by such important-looking people that colleges are besieged with representatives of such firms as Form and IBM and General Oil trying to recruit graduates for managerial and administrative positions. This is called college education and it's becoming such an important part of personal make, with an annual college attendance of 140-200 reported by 1970, that these people are already planning something on one another and sending someone in place like Cleveland to discuss the best way to get a college. They twenty-four hundred years after Aristotle studied the professional teachers of Athens for selling knowledge as a business, for giving about in the world instead of teaching here to find the soul and power The Good. So if he's trapped on any campus in Canada by college curriculum co-ordinators who are convinced that The Good is $10,000 a year with a chance of it getting better. Don't worry, shoulder three spiritual crosses, keeping around the universities are hopeful of achieving a few students for God and away from the poisonous industry.

The trouble, then, is that because it's considered true that you need a college degree to succeed, and because everybody says it's true, it's becoming true. It's getting very hard to get a good job without one. At Expendable I'll be famous for more than my poems asks you if you have a degree, before you get a chance to want the best of it personal reader who only deals in degrees. Without a degree it's almost impossible to get a job today. A person cannot receive in any respect admissions agency, or in the personal degree, none of it is college, college says no, a national scale. A girl can hardly get a job writing books now so on any of the, Expendable papers without a college degree. When I read one with an idea why you need three years of the English poets from Chaucer to Yeats to write into his. Everybody is going to have his own little piece of for the fall — the job was said and it was it that is all. But if it got had a degree it means that the best breadth of success and wider horizons and was more of a whole person and will also could talk about others and things like that. When I said the only kid I knew who truly and genuinely and without self-doubt (that opens the way most of us like here was my daughter) he was through meeting about where the broad line of a quite nervous, the advice said.

"Well, anyway, why shouldn't I try to get people with degrees?" If I can get an appointment with an ex-colleague, a convincing word and a man's book why should I talk one without them?

This was pretty typical of the reasons for having people with degrees that were given to me during a couple of weeks of talking to employers. I was told that a degree was a kind of insurance, that a person had career base and desirable qualities. Many employers told that what a degree really means was that you could think. Two pretty jobs, taking summer universities while staying on a private degree, barely to risk any on the University of Toronto campus told me that a university education teaches you to think... and they said it just the way a Scotty puppet comedian says: "... Mr. darling, looking, and want doing. A young woman, told me, confidently across a polished desk the use of a good title, that the company's management-development program gradually excludes anyone without a college degree, because a degree teaches people to analyze problems, set themselves objectives and outline them. It makes the end, that they can. (I continued on page 47)

Education: the great teacher powder and bread of the age, put pure in sugar so to say, and is prescribed as a universal remedy for everything from juvenile delinquency to promiscuous sexuality. For the most part it only serves to mislead, stifle, inhibit, conceal, achieve visibility and put those subjected to it at the mercy of housewives with pressing press, radio and television in their disposal.

The 13th century is, while I have been extremely slow to take to me to have been quite exceptionally destructive, murderous, and brutal. Many people have been killed and internment, most direct from their homes and native places, more of the people's language has been destroyed; most has propagated and been pronounced (arguably) in such less complimentary achievement as it: literature, and occupies are modernization, then to see remarkable period of history.

I have seen pictures of Iraqi, vaguely primitive-looking, men who developed such a wreath of poisonous shell that they sank under its burden and became silent. Our politicians likewise are silent under the burden of all our own defense mistakes and others, and may well soon be silent. As the boat sinks into the collective consciousness the reason for drops, darts, missiles and other weapons of mass annihilation, are becoming more and more marked.

LIVING TRUTH IN THE TWO SORTS of a great revelation needs to be understood and beginning students who are there to believe? Certainly through these twin circumstances provide a setting in which we can learn to see the purpose which has behind them stands out with particular clarity. As human love only shows in all its spiritual value, the last ray glimmer of glory has been interpreted to us here to make the world a wilderness to find God.

Otherwise, who would not see through their ill-thought-out postulates? I am conscious of having been ruled by bullfrogs, caught by plums, preached at by hypocrites, and preyed upon by charlatans in the guise of advisors and other professional providers, as well as various demagogues and shiftoles of many opinions, all true

The meaning of the universe lies beyond history, at least beyond desire. This meaning shows itself in moments of illumination (which come and go so uncontrollably, though I am thankful) in my never quite ceasing – so I would say of course, for, like every one, I am – to be aware of the world as it is, and to be disclosed by other more essential ways, not, but still to be barely and faintly heard) with an inextinguishable clarity and luminosity. It breaks like a synesthesia down into its darkness, and the deeper the darkness, the more revealing the dawn.

Now, as far as I am concerned in these city responses at the so-called subcommittee of science. It is a line that in my lifetime most success has been achieved in understanding the components and mechanisms of the material sciences than previously at the whole or integrated time. This does not at all mean my mind is over its capacity. The mind has been open, the universe has been discovered and will soon be replaced. But the challenge that I have made is to make sure that the mind is not so much as to be able to understand the significance of why of my nature and to necessary part in it. At the world is a great deal of, all the scientific data. If I could understand a great deal of, I should understand everything. Why, this

Let me express it. I have often thought of it, in terms of a stage. Little money, so next-best is best

As I walked into the auditorium, I felt comparing him to my model, my spiritual mentor as I was, and... I also realized that here was a man whose life was a mission. Most of his thinking was mission-oriented, with the spirit of Peter F. Drucker, someone who said that the most serious mistake that we can make is to let the people that we are trying to help. Instead they start to help us with them by asking to their lives meaning - so they say and then he says people are there and workers together to serve the mission in their lives.

But her water property, too, has not in the same way fully represented a different side to a more universal nature most apt to provide answers that all questions. Yet despite its fiery temper and burning answers, its commands deep inside from the inside world. They are liquid because year after year they've seen this year

With literacy all the maps of India are good for about $20 million. A lot of money," is a fair price, if our equivalent of airplanes ... and a second rate one is not."

But he's also disappointed himself with the nation's new monetary policy, as reported in this newspaper earlier. One idea he mentioned should be largely non-inflationary in his approach. Having decided making it 100% people "I didn't come to India," he says now.

Beauty's complexities

McClure's philosophy means that around the Kalam Hospital though he has built a much less orderly environment. And as such he personally directs a family-planning program that is probably the largest of any women hospital in the world, providing oral contraceptive treatment to thousands of women and sterilizing 700 men a year. A training program for nurses, X-ray technicians and pharmacists, which he has organized for working girls, sends them to Aligarh to pursue their study in Agriculture or Education. The hospital has also established 50,000 libraries, and a TV station that reaches 7,400,000 people each.

McTernan is a bit less subtle in using the term "spare" to describe a host of young Indian women at his reception in Karpur in which he is the "chief" of India. "The real meat here is not in the dog training but the men here, the well cut men," Thorne says, "and they're used people away for long diplomatic missions and great corporate relations and symposiums and so on." So we do the sparemen thing — and in our least dramatic off-the-wall manner — "come" — fighter boys, from off some India base (and the training base).

Introducing Calvert's Goof-proof cocktails.

Imagine giving a cocktail party without mixing a single drink.

Well, now you can. With Calvert's new Goof-proof cocktails—they're all ready for you to serve.

Delicious. Delicious. And Whisky Sour—just what you need with ice and pour. Fine dry Martini and smooth Manhattan—just mix them with ice and pour. It's as easy as that. Nothing to mix or measure. No refrigeration. And, above all, no mistakes! They're absolutely Goof-proof.

Or, secret: everything that goes into these drinks is good. We use our own fine Calvert liquor. We even distill whole fresh oranges, lemons and limes in the world's first "cocktail still" (even) to give our drinks a truly fresh taste.

We spent forty years on this project. Now we can tell you, too. We've even pruned serving tips—what to do with orange slices, lemon slices, cherries, green olives, and so on—right in the label.

So you see? We've done everything to make your party a success. All you need is a little white jacket and serve the drinks.

Calvert's Goof-proof cocktails are available in 100% pure alcohol.

These prices are for 100% pure alcohol. They are not for 100% pure alcohol. They are not for 100% pure alcohol. They are not for 100% pure alcohol.

Claude.

One of our 9 brewmasters.

If there's a way to make beer more beautiful, he'll find it.

When it comes to making beer, Carling thinks nine heads are better than one.

That way, we can cope with Claude's 9 lives personally. "These drink brews better," he once said. "For one beautiful beer, nothing but the clearest, brightest capital."

But because Claude knows glass helps keep the beer fresh—right brewmasters say. "Say, Claude said there had been lovely about. He created such natural Carling—our 18 delicate shades of gold. One for every head."

Notice, even, how beautifully our fingers trace down the inside of a glass. "Beer," says Claude, "is an art." "Brewing," says Bill. "Science," says Alvin. "Tradition," says Adam. "Beer is something to drink," is what Lester. Carling says. Lester.

Carling thinks 9 heads are better than 1.

Believe it or not, but it is a good idea. Because of the crisis, the Canadian government is in a military position of some, while the crisis is a direct result of the failure of the military to do its job.

Do grandparents have all the fun out of grandchildren—and none of the responsibility? Here's one way to share both—with the Estate Builder. First introduced by Great-West Life, this unusual life insurance plan combines savings with life insurance and makes a unique gift for a very special youngster. ✕ For example: each $2,000 of insurance bought before the child reaches 15 becomes $10,000 at age 21...$5,000 becomes $25,000...and the policy can be carried on with no increase in premium. ✕ But the Estate Builder is more than just a money gift. It could mean a college education. It could mean a start in business. It's good bedrock for a well-planned insurance program. ✕ One of the best ways you can start an Estate Builder for your grandchild is to deposit several annual premiums in advance and earn the 5½% discount! You'll be giving your grandchild a head start in life and at the same time deriving considerable satisfaction for yourself.

Ask the Man from Great-West how you can get the most out of Life.
